Greg Call is a partner in the Crowell & Moring's San Francisco office and serves as head of that office. He is member of the firm's Litigation Group and has an active trial practice representing both plaintiffs and defendants in complex commercial cases. He has represented defendants in class actions, government investigations, unfair competition actions, environmental actions and breach of contract actions. He has represented plaintiffs (varying from large corporations to small municipalities) in business torts and breach of contract actions, helping them recover over $1 billion. He has practiced in courts in more than 20 states.

Mr. Call has an active trial practice. He has tried cases both as a plaintiff and defendant. For example, in 2008 and 2009, Mr. Call had two trials - obtaining a favorable jury verdict in federal court in San Francisco for an export company and obtaining injunctive relief for a car rental company in a trial in state court in Illinois.

Mr. Call is AV Peer Review Rated and has been selected as a California Super Lawyer. Prior to joining Crowell & Moring, he was a partner at the San Francisco firm, Folger Levin & Kahn LLP, where he was chair of the firm's litigation department.
