

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

VICTORY: Settlement Details Announced by Harlem Park Residents in Lockdown Case

BALTIMORE – Four residents of Baltimore’s Harlem Park neighborhood who filed a federal court lawsuit against the Baltimore City Police Department (BPD) and former Police Commissioner Kevin Davis charging that their state and federal constitutional rights were violated during a six-day, multi-block lockdown of their neighborhood following the death of Detective Sean Suiter announced today that they have settled their lawsuit and the city has issued a rare public apology.

Click to read this press release.